

WORKSHOP: Letting Go & Being Bold with Landscape in Watercolour with Sophie Knight RWS

Price £100

Location RWS Gallery at Whitcomb Street

Date Thursday 16th of November

Time 10.30am - 4pm

About the Workshop

Watercolour is sometimes an unpredictable medium, but it doesn't have to be scary. Starting with a fresh sheet of white paper can be daunting, but in this workshop, Sophie Knight RWS will aim to help students think more impulsively when applying paint to paper. Sophie will demonstrate her own methods of starting a painting, showing techniques such as 'wet on wet' experimentation, large blocks of colour wash, and how to create depth.

This course is suitable for students with a small amount of experience with watercolour. Sophie will help you to develop confidence and a sense of freedom with the medium.

Morning

- Introduction
- Demonstration of various techniques used regularly by Sophie in her own. Sophie will show " wet on wet techniques using a fine mist of water from a spray and applying the paint quickly in washes.
- Using a selection of landscape photos as a starting point (provided by Sophie), you will begin to develop your own working methods starting on a medium size painting.

Afternoon

- Break for lunch
- Pupils can continue to work on any paintings which are not finished.
- You will then use the techniques you've practiced in the morning to develop a larger composition on A1 size paper.
- Sophie will guide pupils with challenges of working on a larger scale with an emphasis of working in a fast manner, making bold decisions, applying the pigment quickly and drawing with the brush.

About the Tutor

At the age of 24 Sophie graduated from the Royal Academy of Art , won 'The Hunting Group Young Person Award' and became an Associate Member of the Royal Watercolour Society.

Much of Sophie's work is done outside working directly from the landscape or cityscape. Her watercolours are worked in an energetic and vigorous manner, squeezing paint straight onto the paper, scratching in marks and drawing directly with a brush, she aims to retain the freshness and vitality of her visual excitement and record the physical experience of working within the landscape.

She is in numerous private collections including The House of Lords, The New Parliamentary Building, London, TSB Bank, Freshfield Solicitors and Pilkingtons International.
